

Statement of the American Association of Tissue Banks

Tuesday, July 10, 2012 -- Tissue banks exist to meet critical medical needs. Each year thousands of lives are improved through the restoration of function and mobility with minimal risk through the good work of physicians and our highly regulated system supported by compassionate professionals and technical experts. All of this is made possible by the generous gift of donation that for people in need means the ability to live healthier, more active lives.

###